Entire Ocean Beach Community Invited To Hear "Latest News" on Project

"Latest news" about the Community recreational center for Ocean Beach will be given to all who attend the community mass meeting to be held in the auditorium of the Ocean Beach elementary school Tuesday, August 1, starting at 7:45 o'clock, reports those in charge.

The community civic committee, which has been at work for several weeks on the project planning, has invited as honored guests at next Tuesday's meeting, Assemblyman Fred H. Kraft, City Councilman G. C. Crary, and E. K. Klenke, chairman of San Diego city recreation commission. Also invited as special guests are the presidents of the various civic groups and other civic leaders of Ocean Beach. The committee provides the following announcement of the program planned for the meeting:

"Starting at 7:45 there will be melody and mirth by the following artists from our community:

"Mrs. Berrel Smith, 4965 Coronado ave., a talented soprano; Jerry Sullivan, talented baritone, will sing; and Miss Margaret Detwiler, house-guest of Mr. and Mrs. John Overdeer, will play a violin solo.

"Rev. James F. Roberts, chairman of the committee, urges every family be represented at this meeting. Every opportunity will be given to the people to discuss in open forum the need for adequate recreational facilities for Ocean Beach families.

"An open forum led by a panel of three will answer all questions. On the panel will be Mrs. D. C. Muchmore, representing the Girl Scouts; Martin Murphy, representing the Boy Scouts, and Dr. Alfred Sand the Kiwanis club. Mrs. Martha McIntosh, principal of the elementary school, will be mistress of ceremonies. Milton Lancaster will present a 'special surprise' to the community.

"Everyone should enthusiastically support this meeting with their presence."

La Jolla Bs Top Teams in Summer Hoop Tournament

In the tenth round of the basketball league play this week at the Ocean Beach play center in the Davis building, victories were racked up by the La Jolla Bs, 54-39, over the Pt. Loma As. Bob Berman and Bob Fleming hit the hoop for the La Jollans for 26 and 18 points respectively, enabling Fleming to tie Rich Stangle for the second high scoring spot, with 105 points, just one behind the leader, Bill Kettenburg. Kettenburg put on a 15-point scoring spree as his team defeated Rice's Yanks 43 to 34 to wrest the lead from Stangle, who had led from the opening game of the tournament.

The La Jolla As, led by Bob Gasnell who scored 20 points, returned to the winning column, defeating the Pt. Loma Bs 33 to 27. Whitney of the La Jollans

OCEAN BEACH MUST NOT FAIL!

A MESSAGE TO YOU FROM THE MAYOR OF SAN DIEGO:

"It was my privilege to open the 5th War Loan in San Diego and view with pride the enthusiasm of the first few weeks of the campaign.

"Now I regret to report to you that with scarcely a week left in the extended 5th War Loan Drive, San Diego has reached only 75% of its individual goal in Series E, F and G Bonds, the people's bonds.

"What does it mean? It means that today it is the solemn obligation of every San Diego family to buy ANOTHER war bond. Let the size of the bond be determined by personal ability to spare funds—but BUY—and do it TODAY.

"Our government has extended the 5th War Loan to July 31 so that WE WILL NOT FAIL; $5,000,000 are needed. The goal is not impossible, especially when you consider that there are over a quarter of a billion dollars on deposit in San Diego County Savings Banks.

"Your share is an extra bond, bought before July 31. This is a serious situation on the home front. I am certain that, with your help, San Diego will not fail."

Lt. James Powell Killed in Plane Crash in Texas

Second Lt. James G. Powell, who had been a resident of Ocean Beach for four years, was killed in an airplane crash at Stanford, Texas, according to word received here by wire Saturday afternoon by his mother, Mrs. Ethel Powell, 4755 Niagara ave. No particulars have been received other than that the plane which he was piloting crashed while taking off from the air field at Stanford and that he was alone in the machine. He was employed by the Army Air Corps in the ferrying command, piloting planes across country in the United States.

Only last week his duty had taken him to Long Beach, Calif., where he arrived on Tuesday, July 17, and where he was scheduled to leave on another cross-country flight Thursday morning. His mother, Mrs. Powell, and his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Kail and their two children, 5070 Long Branch ave., and his sister-in-law, Mrs. Robert Powell, Jr., of 4755 Niagara ave., had gone to see him at Long Beach and were with him there during Wednesday, July 18.

Mrs. Powell, his mother, and Mrs. Kail, his sister, left for Chicago to attend the funeral. Lt. Powell's wife lives in Chicago, and the plan was that he should be buried in a Chicago cemetery.

Lt. Powell was born in Gordonville, Texas, May 27, 1916, and attended public school in Atwood, Kansas. He came to Ocean Beach as a young man and was employed here by various construction companies for four years. He joined the infantry first and after two years service transferred to the Army Air Corps. He received most of his pilot training at Texas air bases and in June, 1943, graduated from the advanced flying school at Mission, Texas, as a pilot and there received his commission. After graduation he was assigned to the duty of ferrying planes. He was married in Chicago in October, 1943.

Besides his widow and his mother and sister, Mrs. Kail, he leaves his father, Robert L. Powell, Sr., a resident of Denver, Colo.; one brother, Robert L. Powell, Jr., now in the Solomon Islands, serving with the Seabees; and two other sisters, Mrs. Joe Tafelski, Daytona Beach, Fla., and Mrs. Lem Eller, Denver.

Kiwanians Hear 'Low Down' on Life of Attorneys

"All In a Day's Life as a Lawyer" could aptly be labeled as the theme of the talk of James B. Abbey, San Diego attorney and a resident of Ocean Beach, before the Kiwanis club Tuesday evening. He was introduced by Milton Lancaster, program chairman for the evening. Speaking from his experiences with folks who seek the advice and help of a lawyer, he told of incidents and also of criminal cases of keen interest to his hearers.

He sounded an alarm about the prevalence in this county of sex crimes, but added that some progress had been made at least by one judge in this county toward effective handling of the guilty. He defended his profession against the criticism that too many lawyers are crooks, stating that the percentage of crooks among lawyers is no greater than in other professions and in business life. No other profession, he pointed out, is under as much pressure, however, from ordinary law-abiding people, who when they get into a jam or some member of their family gets into a jam, call on a lawyer to "go around the law" in order to get them out of their troubles.

Lawyers also are unjustly criticized for placing the multiplicity of laws on the statute books, when as a matter of fact, he said, special interests of one kind or another have employed them to draft bills favorable to such interests. The club had one visitor, Walter B. Backer, MM 1/c, the guest of Dr. Alfred Sand.

He left San Diego in July 1942 for overseas duty and was stationed first at a naval base in the Solomon Islands.

Pfc Edward Litten Killed in Action In Italy July 5

Pfc Edward Shirley Litten of 4955 Narragansett ave. was killed in action in Italy on July 5, according to a telegram from the war department that came here Friday to his mother, Mrs. Ver-nice Kelley of the same address.

As it happened, Mrs. Kelley had left here July 14 on a trip and is visiting her mother in Terre Haute, Ind. Only other near relatives of the youth killed are his father, who is believed to be living in Springfield, Ill.; his brother, Robert Daniel, serving with the U. S. Navy in the Southwest Pacific and his grandfather, John B. Harding, who lives at the above address and is employed in the Roberts bakery.

Edward was 21 years old and had been a resident of Ocean Beach for about eight years. He had attended both the elementary school and Pt. Loma high school, and had been employed at Consolidated aircraft factory here before joining the army. He had been in the thick of the fighting in Italy for about a year, serving with the infantry.

Capt. O. R. Egan of the medical corps of the Army, returned about two weeks ago from the battlefield in Italy, according to word received by friends here. He had been in the thick of the fighting in Italy and Africa ever since the start of the Yanks' campaign in Africa more than a year and a half ago. Capt. Egan, who practiced medicine here for several years, having an office at 1923 Bacon st., where Dr. M. R. Eby now is located, is at Oakland, Calif., visiting with his family.

William E. Nelson jr. of Ocean Beach has received a commission as an ensign in the United States Naval reserves following his recent graduation from a midshipman school, Camp Macdonough, at Plattsburg, N.Y., the Eleventh Naval district announced today. Ensign Nelson, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Nelson, 4661 Coronado ave., formerly attended Pomona college. He has successfully completed a 16-week course designed to prepare him for active duty as an officer. He was a member of the first class to be graduated from the Plattsburg school.

Lt. Col. Raymond L. Murray, who was wounded in the recent sanguinary campaign against the Japs on Saipan island in the southwest Pacific, is back in San Diego convalescing from his injuries. His wife, Mrs. Evelyn Murray, lives at 4440 Orchard ave., and is a daughter of Lt. Comdr. and Mrs. W. F. Roseman of San Diego. Lt. Col. Murray, who had been overseas since October, 1942, is a graduate of Texas A. & M., and joined the Marines in 1935. He also had a term of service with the Marine Corps in China previous to this war.

Harold A. Stone, T/M, second class, who has been away on duty for 14 months, flew in from the South Pacific on a Commando plane July 18 for a surprise visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Stone, 4782 Brighton. He has 30 days leave and plans to visit his brother, Warren Stone, a V-12 Navy student at the University of California at Berkeley, and to visit friends while in California. The submarine on which he has been serving has the distinction of having sunk 60,000 tons of Japanese shipping in four months.

First Lt. Joseph W. Utz of 4616 Muir ave. had the distinction recently of sharing his fox-hole on Saipan in the Marianas Islands with the brigadier general who was second in command of the division. A sergeant who also occupied the same foxhole for three nights along with the brigadier general, writes The News that "when shells are dropping all around you, as they have been here since we first landed five days ago, everything is a little more informal than in normal times. Sharing a foxhole with a man who has done as much to defeat the Japs as the general, and who knows as much about them as he does, goes a long way towards giving you as much of a feeling of security as is possible out here."

Honor Roll to Service Men, Women Planned

C. of C., Kiwanis Decide to Sponsor Building $2,000 Monument in O. B.

Chamber of Commerce directors, meeting Wednesday night, and Kiwanis directors meeting Tuesday night, decided to jointly sponsor construction of an honor roll monument for all Ocean Beach service-men and service-women. Plan is to place on the honor roll the names of all men and women in Ocean Beach whose homes are within the boundaries of zone seven, who have served, are serving, or will yet serve their country in this war. The Kiwanis civic committee consisting of Lloyd Greeson, John E. Loftus and Earl Shaw, have been planning on the project for several weeks.

The monument, as planned thus far, will have a base about 20 feet in width, will be 12 feet high and will be constructed of either stucco or brick, on which will be bolted a bronze plaque large enough for an honor roll of at least 1,000 names, the tablet to be waterproof.

Financing of the honor roll structure will be from voluntary donations from the entire Ocean Beach community. "We have opportunity to get the entire $1800 or $2000 needed from just a few men," Chairman Greeson said Thursday, "but we are sure the Ocean Beach folks will prefer the plan of asking everybody to each contribute a small amount." A finance committee consisting of Capt. Burritt S. Mills, Milton Lancaster and John E. Loftus, has been named to receive the collection. Their headquarters for such donations will be at the Marc Strauss store, 5034 Newport, announces Chairman Greeson. Contributions can be turned in, however, he said. A complete list of the donors will be sealed in the monument. Further information can be obtained from any of the men mentioned.

The matter of getting the names, of course, will be a long-drawn out effort, as the committee is anxious to make sure that all names belonging on the honor roll will be placed there. A special committee will be chosen to take charge of this part of the project.

OCEAN BEACH FIREMEN HELP SAVE POINT LOMA HOMES IN SUNDAY FIRE

Prompt action by the Ocean Beach firemen in conjunction with two other San Diego city firemen crews Sunday afternoon saved several homes in the Point Loma section near Silvergate ave. from destruction by fire Sunday. As it happened firemen from station 22 on Point Loma were busy on another fire when the alarm was sounded here.

A large residence facing on Jennings st. near Silvergate ave. was the nearest to the fire which had been started in the brush on vacant lots nearby and which had gone out of control. Main damage was to trees, reports Lt. Joe Otten, in charge of the local fire station.

SAILOR REPORTS BEING BEATEN AND ROBBED OF $150 BY CAR DRIVER

A sailor stationed at the Naval Repair base, by the name of Sanford S. Sexton, told police Monday that he was beaten and robbed of $150 by a cab driver.

He said he entered a car which he thought was a cab at Ocean Beach and asked to be taken to the base. On the way, he said, the driver stopped, telling him that the car had developed motor trouble, and asked him to alight. When he did, the driver slugged him and robbed him. Sexton suffered a possible broken nose.

McKEON TO BROADCAST

George McKoon of Ocean Beach will broadcast his two songs, "Walking Beside a Soldier," and "Blood for the Brave," of the drive on July 31 in order that report can be made to the headquarters in San Diego. He plans to sing both songs, with Myron Collins as the accompanist.

Marine Saves Two Chula Vistans from Death by Drowning

A family of four had a close shave with death from drowning Wednesday afternoon about 2:45 when they were washed off a ledge near the ocean shore at the foot of Osprey st. in the Sunset Cliffs section of Ocean Beach. According to report made by the investigating officers of the local police station, W. J. Shewbert and W. I. Whitehouse, to Sgt. R. J. Karrow, a marine by name of Earl Collins of the U. S. Naval station in San Diego, was the hero of the day in his rescue of two of the four people swept into the surf.

The police report shows that "Collins was mainly instrumental in saving the lives of Mrs. Sid Graham, 26, and her nephew, Max Wade Graham, 2. Other two in the party were Glenn W. Graham, 35, and his seven-months-old baby, all of Chula Vista. Mr. Graham managed to get out of the waves with his baby, but the other two required heroic efforts on the part of Collins. The two were standing on an exposed section of the cliff when a large wave broke over the rock and washed them off into the ocean.

"Collins being nearby stripped off his clothes and dove into the surf at the spot and was able to maneuver the two over the base of the cliffs and onto a ledge where they were further assisted by civilians until arrival of police and lifeguards. After making the rescue Collins swam back through the surf to his starting point and was well nigh exhausted.

"At the time the ocean and surf were quite rough, making rescue all the more hazardous. This action of Collins was beyond the call of ordinary duty and is worthy of deserving praise.

"The two-year-old boy, Max, is at Paradise Valley hospital in National City in a serious condition suffering compound fracture of one leg, shock and numerous lacerations. Dr. John W. Wilhoit of Ocean Beach, police surgeon, gave first aid and sent the lad to the hospital.

"This report is made in recognition of the meritorious action of Collins before the police or other help could arrive."

Collins also assisted the father and the baby after he had taken care of the others.

San Diego Puts Forth Effort to Meet Bond Quota

San Diego, including Ocean Beach, is putting forth an extra effort this week-end and up until Aug. 1 to meet the quota set for the individual purchases of bonds in the Fifth War Loan drive. Only five days remain of the campaign. A special appeal is being made in this week's issue of The News by Chairman Fred H. Kraft and by Mayor Harley Knox.

While the local stores have gone "over the top" on their part of the campaign, the reports indicate that Ocean Beach as a whole is below the quota for this community, hence the special request being made.

Capt. Burritt S. Mills, who was in charge of the campaign put on by the Ocean Beach stores and their employees, asks The News to request these stores to tally their totals immediately after the close of the drive on July 31 in order that report can be made to the headquarters in San Diego. He plans to sing both songs, with Myron Collins as the accompanist.

Germany Admits 'Grave Situation' As Allies Continue to Advance; Study World Oil Marketing

France—Surprised by sniper while on patrol, U. S. Doughboys make for ditch and prepare to return enemy's fire.

SECOND FRONT: Hedgerow Battle

Beautiful in peace, treacherous in war, the hedgerowed fields checker-boarding Normandy's picturesque countryside were the scene of some of the bitterest fighting of World War II, with desperate Nazis using them to conceal their rifles, machine guns and artillery to impede the relentless advance of the American doughboys.

Farther to the east, Gen. Bernard L. Montgomery's British and Canadian forces girded for a large-scale assault against strong concentra-

Shortly after he had told his son, Capt. Quentin Roosevelt, that "the old machine is pretty well worn out," 56-year-old Brig. Gen. Theodore Roosevelt Jr., son of the immortal "Teddy," quietly succumbed to a heart attack in an army tent on the Normandy battlefield, where he had been assistant commanding general of the 4th infantry division.

tions of German armor in the plains below Caen, while enemy units continued to jab into their flanks to unsettle their positions.

As the Allies edged forward in northern France and received a continuing stream of reinforcements, some allegedly direct from the U. S., American and British aviators were swooping down on German communications lines in efforts to disrupt the flow of enemy reserves and supplies to the flaming front.

German Soil

No longer able to maneuver freely on the vast spaces of Russia, and with its back to its own homeland, the German army on the northern sector of the eastern front found itself confronted with the problem of being forced to stand up and fight or allow the Reds to carry the war into their own country.

As the Russian army became the first Allied force to approach the threshold of Germany, bitter fighting continued to rage before the enemy's "Gothic line" in northern Italy, where the Nazis again took advantage of the high mountain country to slow up the Fifth and Eighth armies advance to the rich agricultural and industrial regions beyond.

As the Germans fell back toward their East Prussian border in the north, German propagandists made no bones about the critical situation, declaring that the time had come for the complete industrial and military mobilization of every man in the Reich capable of working or bearing arms.

PACIFIC: Spotlight Shifts

The spotlight in the ever widening Pacific warfare shifted back to northern New Guinea, where 45,000 desperate Japanese sandwiched between U. S. backheads all along the coast, repeatedly attempted to break through the iron ring being forged around them.

In the islands farther to the north, U. S. warships and planes continued to pepper the important stepping stones to the Japanese mainland, with Guam below captured Saipan the major target.

Despite the ferocity of their attacks in New Guinea, the position of the Japanese forces was hopeless, with Yanks occupying large patches all along the 600 miles of coastline to their west, and other Allied forces firmly entrenched to their east.

FOURTH TERM: F.D.R. Willing

One week before the Democratic national convention met in Chicago, Franklin D. Roosevelt, looking cool in his seersucker pants and white shirt, but wriggling nervously, told a gathering of 200 quiet newspapermen that if the people of the U. S. decreed, he would be willing to serve a fourth term as president.

With the country's objective being a speedy end to the war, a durable peace and the creation of a prosperous economy, F. D. R. said that he would have to accept a fourth term as a "good soldier" if the people again called upon him to remain at the helm of state.

F. D. R.'s announcement was front page news the world over, with both British and Russian papers playing it up without comment. The German radio disclaimed interest, saying: "... One is convinced here (in Berlin) that military and political issues which are now at stake are not to be influenced by this or that President of the United States."

DIPLOMACY: Good Neighbors

Provision of American transportation facilities for movement of goods to Mexico, and close economic cooperation between the two countries in peace as well as war, dominated the formal discussions of U. S. Secretary of State Cordell Hull and Mexican Foreign Minister Ezequiel Padilla.

Not only did the U. S. promise to help hold up the Mexican economy by maintaining the shipment of goods to the good neighbor, but it also agreed to furnish technicians and equipment for bolstering the country's own sagging railway system.

Basing their discussions on a program drawn up by a U. S.-Mexican commission created as an outgrowth of President Roosevelt's visit with President Camacho in 1943, Hull and Padilla announced that the two governments agreed to "discourage trade barriers which may unduly interfere with the economic development of Mexico and trade between the two countries."

Oil Parley

Organization of an international administrative agency to provide orderly marketing and development of world oil resources will be the principal topic of discussion of a formal oil conference between the U. S. and Britain.

The conference promises to be of particular interest in the U. S. with depletion of American reserves as a result of record war time production for the supply of the major bulk of Allied needs, and with the projected construction of a private pipeline across Arabia to the Mediterranean with U. S. government funds.

The conference will follow technical discussions between petroleum experts of the two countries, with Secretary of State Cordell Hull and Lord Beaverbrook being in charge of the U. S. and British delegations.

Supplies and Troops Continue to Roll In Striking panorama of the French invasion beach was made by a coast guard combat cameraman from a hillside cut with trenches, in foreground, by ousted Nazi defenders. The channel is black with ships as reinforcements and supplies pour ashore to reinforce the troops to continue their advance southward. Barrage balloons float overhead to protect the landings. Until captured harbors have been repaired, and perhaps even later, the beachheads are being utilized to land men, supplies, munitions and food as well as hospital and canteen supplies now being furnished the invaders.

Nazi Collaborationist Loses 'Crowning Glory'

The French patriots made the punishment fit the crime (as any female who has had her "crowning glory" sheared will attest). Grande Guillotte, 23-year-old French girl was taken from her home by force and sheared of her long hair for collaborating with the Nazis. Many French patriots have joined together and have designated a large number of collaborationist suspects. While they have not announced the punishment to be given to all the men on the list, it looks as if the women will soon be missing their hair.

First Marines to Land in U. S.

The First Marine division, with 2,743 happy members, arrived in San Diego after 26 months in the South Pacific. This unit struck America's first land blow at Japan at Guadalcanal. Their most recent action was on New Britain island where they drove out the Japs.

Don't Pin Rubber

Never pin through the rubber part of a strap, a garter or of the garment itself even for a short time.

Hardware Disease

The "hardware disease" of cattle is caused by the animals swallowing nails, staples, pieces of wire, and other sharp scraps of metal. The remedy lies in keeping feedlots free of harmful metal objects.

Speed Changes

Enzymes, naturally present in fresh fruits, vegetables and meats, accelerate changes in these products. They cause fruits and vegetables to ripen normally, but later hasten decay. Cooking and canning readily destroy enzymes. Therefore, the quicker the products can be canned the more effectively the texture and fresh flavor is retained. In products such as fresh peas and sweet corn these enzymes work very rapidly and sweetness is lost with each succeeding hour.

Curbs Plant Lice

Nicotine is used principally to control plant lice or aphids and other sucking insects. For sprays it is available as nicotine sulfate liquid. (Black Leaf 40 is a well-known brand.) Nicotine sulfate in concentrated form is a violent poison but most of it quickly disappears from plants to which it is applied as dust or spray.

Harm Vegetables

Tomatoes may be bothered by tomato worm, flea beetle and potato beetle, and may also require Bordeaux or other treatment for control of diseases. Cabbage worms on cabbage, cauliflower, brussels sprouts, broccoli, and Chinese cabbage can be controlled by either a poison dust or spray, or by rotenone. Cabbage maggots can be stopped by using tar-paper pads about the stems of the plants or by dusting the stems before planting with a calomel-cornstarch mixture.

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

BUSTLES: Something faintly resembling the old-fashioned bustle has made its appearance in the New York fashion shows. It's only a little bulge, it's true, sometimes in the form of a stiff bow, sometimes a series of fish-tail ruffles in the center of the back, but it's a legitimate descendant of grandmother's day. So far it has only appeared on afternoon gowns and cocktail suits.

COCOA: The tight situation will soon be relieved by the arrival of 667,000 bags of cocoa beans from Africa. The new Brazilian crop will soon be coming in, dealers say. Recently manufacturers of cocoa products have had to reduce their grind to 70 per cent of the 1941 base quantity for civilian use, but they can now go on a full schedule again because of the new receipts.

WORTH OF C. OF C. DEMONSTRATED

The worth of a Chamber of Commerce was again demonstrated here this week when the city began work on the installation of a more efficient lifeguard ramp near the local police station. Ocean Beach Chamber of Commerce, at the June meeting, had taken action asking the city for such improvement.

As result of action taken at the July meeting, improvements are being made at the Davis recreation building at the foot of Santa Monica ave. Result also of action at the July meeting, the navy shore patrol is assisting now in the policing of the Ocean Beach business district.

Time and again items come up that require action by a community civic organization. By its achievements Ocean Beach Chamber of Commerce is more than justifying its existence.

HOME COMMUNITY DISCOVERY

Four or five years ago when gasoline and rubber were as easy to buy as a loaf of bread, we thought nothing of jumping into the family car and driving a 20 or 30 mile round trip for shopping or entertainment.

Pearl Harbor changed that.

But since our travels have been limited we have discovered a good many things right in our own community that we once went miles to get. Our local explorations have revealed that the home shops are well equipped to satisfy our needs.

Since World war I the forward strides in mass production and multiple-unit distribution have broken through the one-time isolation of smaller communities. Today our stores can compete on even terms with metropolitan shops in bargains, in quality and in variety of stock.

Progressive independent and chain retailing has put the suburban and smaller communities on the main lines of distribution, and is proving itself a real ally to these communities as the enforced decline in motor travel makes shopping at home a practical necessity as well as a patriotic duty.

Yes, we don't travel as much as we used to, but we have learned that our own pastures are just as green as the other fellow's.

LET'S LEAD THE PROCESSION

Surveys are being made over the nation for the purpose of determining post-war demands for air express and air freight. When one looks at a map showing the design for America's worldwide air routes, the importance of such preparation and coordination of the facilities to be offered the public becomes self evident.

According to post-war plans now on paper, the United States expects that its international airlines will fly 140,000 miles, 60,000 of those miles over new routes. Where, before the war, passengers were the principal load, it is expected that air express and freight will add tremendously to the future cargo of the airlines.

Just as an example to illustrate the possibilities, air express handled through La Guardia field during May, averaged more than 1,800 shipments a day, 27.8 percent increase over May, 1943. For the five-month period, January to May, at the same airport, express shipments increased 23 percent over 1943.

Fortunately, the United States has express facilities in almost every hamlet, which, under a co-ordinated pick-up and delivery system, are rendering universal service that can be extended to meet any future air transport requirements.

As usual, private enterprise in our country is one jump ahead of demand. We can never afford to be the tail-end of the procession in future air developments for either passengers or cargo shipments, as this war has so dramatically demonstrated.

The telephone waiting list is as short as we can make it —and yet it's longer than we like!

War has not only stopped the manufacture of telephone equipment for civilians, but has made many more people want telephones.

Since the National Defense program began in 1940, we have been hard at work supplying the needs of the Army, Navy, war producers and the public. There has been a net increase of 4½ million in the number of Bell System telephones in service.

This has used up our normal reserves, so there may be a delay in moving service and there probably will be a delay in establishing new service.

Switchboards are carrying more lines and calls than they were designed for.

State's Population Increases Million In Three Years

California's estimated population on June 30, 1943, was 8,015,720, State Controller Harry B. Riley announced at Sacramento today. This is an increase of 1,108,333, or 16.05 percent over the 1940 Federal census figure of 6,907,387 persons.

"This estimate," said Riley, "is based on figures furnished to the state controller's office by county auditors and city clerks, and appears to be in close agreement with recent estimates made by other interested agencies."

Riley called attention to the shift in California's population which has occurred since the 1940 census. "In 1940," said Riley, "71 percent of the population was found in urban communities, and 29 percent in rural areas. On June 30, 1943, however, 78.5 percent is estimated to be in the urban communities, and only 21.5 percent in rural areas."

"Assuming that at least a relatively high percentage of the population increase will remain in California after the war is won," said Riley, "these figures indicate that many housing projects must be included in post-war planning programs; that new industries to replace war industries must be brought to California to provide employment; and that large-scale food production development must be considered a vital factor in the health and welfare of the people. Furthermore, California must be ready to carry her full share of the cost of rehabilitation of disabled veterans."

The proudest title in the Army

It CONSISTS of two simple words.

Yet every soldier who's worth his salt covets it.

This title is simply:

"Good Soldier."

It isn't just happenstance that so many women in the WAC have earned this title—the proudest in the Army.

For wherever Wacs are working, both here and overseas, there you find a job well done. And done with a spirit so gallant and fine that high Army officers everywhere say of the WAC...

"They're soldiers. Good soldiers!"

WHAT OUR BOYS WANT FROM US

WE ARE NEARING the dawn of a new and portentous tomorrow. With that dawn will come a new and forceful generation of men. They left us but yesterday as boys, the youth of the land. They were what other generations of boys have been, fun-loving, carefree youngsters. They will return to us hard-visaged men whose souls have been seared in the horrors and waste of war.

On that tomorrow we will give them a glad welcome and think of them as the sons or brothers or husbands or sweethearts or companions of yesterday, and they will accept that welcome with the fervor with which it is offered. But will we understand this new generation of boys suddenly grown to man's stature? To do that we must look deep beneath the surface, and it will be well that we do. Those who left us as boys, who are coming back to us as men, will be the dominant force of the nation until they have raised their sons to take their places.

A percentage—a small percentage—of those returning men will expect to be cared for, to be coddled and provided with the necessities and luxuries of life as a reward for the hardships and dangers they endured. The great majority will come back expecting to find at home those things they have been fighting for—liberty and opportunity—and those things they will have. They will not countenance any pinkish tinge to the liberty and opportunity they demand. They will want nothing that might, even slightly, resemble that which they have fought against. They endured the horrors and dangers of war that liberty and opportunity might live. They want that opportunity of making their own future, each going as far as his ability and energy will carry him, and that they will insist upon. The theorist, the partisan, the racketeer, the bureaucrat will not be permitted to stand in their way. They will set the tempo and we, the home folks, will march to their music. They will be the dominant force in America politically, economically and socially. It is well that it should be so.

STATES RIGHTS AND CENTRALIZED GOVERNMENT
VERMONT WISHES TO preserve her valleys, the home lands of her people. Washington wants to flood those valleys with lakes created by hydro electric power dams. It is a safe bet Washington will build the dams and flood those Vermont valleys despite all the assurance of state sovereignty contained in the Constitution. That is bureaucratic centralization. California cities have spent hundreds of millions to insure their people a water supply from the Colorado river. Now Washington as a good neighbor act, has, by treaty, promised much of that California needed water to Mexico. Who will win? Again it is a safe bet Mexico gets the water despite the constitutional rights of California. Centralized government does the trick. Rights of the states are meaningless.

AMERICA'S INVESTMENTS
THE FORGOTTEN AMERICANS of today would seem to be the more than 15 million direct investors in American industry; the 63 million insurance policy holders, whose premium payments are largely invested in industry; the 45 million savings depositors, whose money is loaned by the banks to industry. Practically all of us Americans have a direct or indirect interest in fair play to industry, and a preservation of the free enterprise system. Congress and the bureaucrats do not seem to realize how many there are of us.

MARKETING AND DISTRIBUTION
WE WANTED ONIONS, NOTHING FANCY, just the old reliable dried onions, and there were none to be had. The market man told me the farmers would not sell what they had at the government's cent-a-pound ceiling price, and the stores could not charge above eight cents a pound, the ceiling price to the consumer. If that market man was right and there is a spread of one to eight cents between the price to the grower and the price to the consumer, there is something wrong with the distribution system. Distribution is the big problem that demands a practical solution.

Gen. Eddy Commands One Of Best Combat Divisions

Commander Dares Enemy Fire to Be With His Fighting Troops

By Ernie Pyle

IN NORMANDY.—One of the favorite generals among the war correspondents is Maj. Gen. Manton S. Eddy, commander of the Ninth division.

We like him because he is absolutely honest with us, because he is sort of old-shoe and easy to talk with, and because we think he is a mighty good general. We have known him in Tunisia and Sicily, and now here in France.

Ernie Pyle

Like his big chief, Lieut. Gen. Omar Bradley, General Eddy looks more like a schoolteacher than a soldier. He is a big, tall man but he wears glasses and his eyes have a sort of squint. He talks like a Middle Westerner, which he is. He still claims Chicago as home, although he has been an army officer for 28 years. He was wounded in the last war. He is not a glib talker, but he talks well and laughs easily.

In spite of being a professional soldier he despises war, and like any ordinary soul is appalled by the waste and tragedy of it. He wants to win it and get home just as badly as anybody else.

When the general is in the field he lives in a truck that used to be a machine shop. They have fixed it up nicely for him with a bed, a desk, cabinets, and rugs. His orderly is an obliging, dark-skinned sergeant who is a native of Ecuador. Some of his officers sleep in foxholes, but the general sleeps in his truck. One night, however, while I was with his division, it got too hot even for him. Fragments from shells bursting nearby started hitting the top of the truck, so he got out.

The general has a small mess in a tent separate from the rest of the division staff. This is because he has a good many visiting generals, and since they talk business while they eat they must have some privacy.

Usually he stays at his desk during the morning and makes a tour of regimental and battalion command posts during the afternoon. Usually he goes to the front in an unarmed jeep, with another jeep right behind him carrying a machine gunner and rifleman on the alert for snipers. His drivers say when they start out:

"Hold on, for the general doesn't spare the horses when he's traveling."

He carries a portable telephone in his jeep, and if he suddenly wants to talk with any of his units he just stops along the road and plugs into one of the wires that are lying on the ground.

General Eddy especially likes to show up in places where his soldiers wouldn't expect to see him. He knows that it helps the soldiers' spirits to see their commanding general right up at the front where it is hot. So he walks around the front with his long stride, never ducking or appearing to be concerned at all.

One day I rode around with him on one of his tours. At one command post we were sitting on the grass under a tree, looking at maps, with a group of officers around us.

Our own artillery was banging nearby, but nothing was coming our way. Then, like a flash of lightning, here came a shell just over our heads, so low it went right through the treetops, it seemed. It didn't whine, it swished. Everybody, including full colonels, flopped over and began grabbing grass. The shell exploded in the next orchard.

General Eddy didn't move. He just said:

"Why, that was one of our shells."

And since I had known General Eddy for quite a while, I was bold enough to say:

"General, if that was one of our shells I can say that this is a hell of a way to run a war. We're fighting toward the north, and that shell was going due south."

The general just laughed.

The general also likes to get up at four o'clock in the morning once in a while and go poking around in message centers and mess halls, giving the boys a start. It was one of these night meanderings that produced his favorite war story.

It was in Africa. They were in a new bivouac. It was raining cats and dogs, and the ground was knee-deep in mud. The tent pegs wouldn't stay in and the pup tents kept coming down. Everybody was wet and miserable. So, late at night the general started out on foot around the area, just because he felt so sorry for all the kids out there.

As he walked he passed a soldier trying to redrive the stake that held down the front of his pup tent. The soldier was using his steel helmet as a hammer, and he was having a bad time of it. Every now and then he would miss the stake with the helmet and would squash mud all over himself. He was cussing and fuming.

The general was using his flashlight, and when the soldier saw the light he called out:

"Hey, Bud, come and hold that light for me, will you?"

So General Eddy obediently squatted down and held the light while the soldier pounded and spattered mud, and they finally got the peg driven. Then, as they got up, the general said:

"Soldier, what's your name?"

The startled soldier gasped, leaned forward and looked closely, then blurted out:

"Goddelmighty!"

During the Cherbourg Peninsula campaign I spent nine days with the Ninth Infantry division—the division that cut the peninsula, and one of the three that overwhelmed the great port of Cherbourg.

The Cherbourg campaign is old stuff by now, and you are no longer particularly interested in it. But the Ninth division has been in this war for a long time and will be in it for a long time to come. So I would like to tell you some things about it.

The Ninth is one of our best divisions. It landed in Africa and it fought through Tunisia and Sicily. Then it went to England last fall, and trained all winter for the invasion of France. It was one of the American divisions in the invasion that had previous battle experience.

The Ninth did something in this campaign that we haven't always done in the past. It kept tenaciously on the enemy's neck. When the Germans would withdraw a little the Ninth was right on top of them. It never gave them a chance to reassemble or get their balance.

The Ninth moved so fast it got to be funny. I was based at the division command post, and we struck our tents and moved forward six times in seven days.

That works the daylight out of the boys who take down and put up the tents. I overheard one of the boys saying: "I'd rather be with Ringling Brothers."

Usually a division headquarters is a fairly safe place. But with the Ninth it was different. Something was always happening.

They had a bad shelling one night and lost some personnel. Every now and then snipers would pick off somebody. In all the time I was with them we never had an uninterrupted night's sleep. Our own big guns were all around us and they would fire all night. Usually German planes were over too, droning around in the darkness and making us tense and nervous.

One night I was sitting in a tent with Capt. Lindsey Nelson of Knoxville, when there was a loud explosion, then a shrill whine through the treetops over our heads. But we didn't jump, or hit the dirt. Instead I said: "I know what that is. That's the rotating band off one of our shells. As an old artilleryman I've heard lots of rotating bands. Sometimes they sound like a dog howling. There's nothing to be afraid of." "Sure," said Captain Nelson, "that's what it was, a rotating band."

But our harmless rotating band, we found a few minutes later, was a jagged, red-hot, foot-square fragment of steel from a 240-mm. German shell which had landed a hundred yards away from us. It's wonderful to be a wise guy.

High Staff Officers Given Secret Protection

In the early days of the invasion a whole bevy of high-ranking Allied officers came to visit us—Generals Marshall, Eisenhower and Arnold, Admirals King and Ramsey—there was so much brass you just bumped two-star generals without even begging pardon.

Being generals, they know they must appear to be brave in order to set an example. Consequently, a high-ranking general never ducks or bats an eye when a shell hits near. The military police charged with conducting this glittering array of generals around our beachhead tried to get them to ride in armored cars.

But, being generals, they said no, certainly not, no armored cars for us, we'll just go in open command cars like anybody else. And that's the way they did go.

Cooperation With Mexico Big Boost to Agriculture

Bilateral Exchange of Information, Facilities and Personnel Does Much To Boost Farm Output.

By BAUKHAGE

News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, Union Trust Building Washington, D. C.

In a few weeks now, international cooperation will probably be the subject of heated political debate. The opponents of this benevolent concept will, having exhausted other arguments against it, probably end up with the usual statement that "cooperation between nations might be all right in theory but it won't work."

While this controversy is going on up and down the land, a number of scientific gentlemen, who won't lose their jobs if the administration changes here in Washington, and who pester themselves not so much about votes as about pests, will be calmly reading the reports of an international organization which has already proved that it does work.

The Inter-American Conference on Agriculture meeting in Mexico City will have concluded its second session by that time. It is making a lot of progress but preceding it was another meeting: the United States-Mexican commission, reports of whose session have not yet been made to the department of agriculture but interested officials know that when they are made, they will record definite, practical progress. They know this because they know that this commission has already furthered cooperative projects which have resulted in the saving of many dollars to both the United States and Mexico, to say nothing of promoting good will in each country through mutual assistance. The commission has furnished concrete examples of international cooperation which prove that it is both possible and practical.

Today, more cotton blossoms are unfolding under the Texas sun, more American fruit has the assurance of ripening and fewer cows will perish of tick fever because of Mexican-American cooperation—to mention a few of the many positive achievements attained when wise men sit down together to work toward their common good.

The story of this particular effort really begins back in July of 1942 at the first meeting of the Inter-American Conference on Agriculture. At that meeting, energetic Senor Marte Gomez, Mexican minister of agriculture, took Secretary Wickard by the lapel, and said, in effect:

"The Americas all have some agricultural interests in common. But Mexico and the United States have many."

New Projects

That started something which was continued by a long correspondence between the two countries furthered by American Ambassador to Mexico Messersmidt and Secretary Wickard. Plans were laid for merging various projects on which there had already been some cooperation and others which were in the making.

As an illustration, let me mention two projects which are supported by both governments. Carrying out these projects by the department of agriculture has required no extra appropriations from congress. It is merely an extension of already approved programs for getting (gratis) assistance from the Mexicans. In doing it, there has been a bilateral exchange of information, facilities and personnel.

Take the largest project which has to do with the pink boll worm. This story starts in Egypt where the wicked foe of the cotton plant may have been flourishing since the days of the Pharaohs, for all I know. Anyhow, the worm turned up in Mexico in about 1911, having sneaked across the Atlantic from the banks of the Nile in infected seed cotton.

By 1916, the boll-worm family had grown and some of the more ambitious members decided to migrate again. They took wing and flew across the Rio Grande into the United States. Measures were taken against the pest and it never got out of control in the main cotton area. But in the Laguna area in Mexico, it has a firm hold and southern Texas is threatened. Naturally, the United States wants to keep all pests out of the United States and the best thing to do about it is what the Mexicans want most to do—destroy them at the source.

So, American experts from the department of agriculture have taught their Mexican colleagues what we know about eradication: the fall clean up of the infected stalks, the sterilization of seeds before they are shipped out or planted and other measures. We, on the other hand, have had the facilities of an office in Monterey, Mexico, where we are assisted in the study of the life and habits of the pest at first hand and improving our techniques in fighting it.

Mexican Fruit Fly

Another large project is directed against the life, liberty and evil pursuits of the Mexican fruit fly. That insect, flourishing in western Mexico, has not disturbed us as yet but preventive measures are being worked out and the Mexicans have learned to sterilize their own fruit so that it can safely enter the United States.

As a result of the joint efforts and studies, an obliging wasp has been imported from Panama, which likes nothing better (in fact likes nothing else at all) but these fruit flies for breakfast, dinner and supper. The wasp has been introduced into Mexico as a "predator." The meaning of that title, you can figure out for yourself.

Other projects might be mentioned but this is not meant to be a technical article, it is merely the record of one kind of international cooperation which has been made effective with the admixture of a little patience and some wisdom.

Great strides have been made in agriculture in Mexico in recent years and side by side with this growing progress and increased efficiency has developed a feeling of mutual confidence on the part of the two nations which have shared their experiences.

Minister Gomez is more than a political appointee. He is a trained agriculturist. Under him are many trained men, a large number who have attended American universities, notably in California. Mexico's department of agriculture employees are far less subject to political whims than formerly.

Mexican agriculture is progressing and turning to the United States for advice and counsel. A veritable parade of Mexican agriculturists passes through the office of P. M. Amlee, of the Latin American division of the bureau of foreign agricultural relations. Most of them speak English. If they can't, they can still pool their experiences, thanks to trained interpreters.

This arrangement is not a war baby. It started before the war and an effort is being made to emphasize the common problems which exist in peace time so that the program will rest on a more permanent foundation. Of course, some of the war time ventures are embraced in the work of the United States-Mexican commission—like the rubber growing projects, but the more profitable, solid and permanent arts of peace are the basis of the whole cooperative program.

War-Time Restrictions

If you think the government's war-time regulations are too severe in this country, look over this list of things you can be prosecuted for in Great Britain these days:

Not washing your empty milk bottles (dairies are as short on soap).
Trying to cut ahead a line of people waiting for a bus.
Throwing a crust of bread into the garbage bin.
Going to the seashore (the south coast of England and sections of the coast elsewhere are military areas).
Buying clothes without giving up coupons. (A shopkeeper who tries to sell clothes without coupons is involved in the black market. Soon-er or later, he finds himself in court along with many of his customers.)
Being consistently late to work in the morning.
Changing your job (without having the ministry of labor's permission).
Driving to work (it is an offense to drive to work along a route served by buses or trains, however crowded they may be.)
Throwing away a piece of string (it is needed for salvage).
Selling an American lend-leased alarm clock. (Only workers who have to get up between midnight and 5 a. m. are given these permits.)

In washing a sweater, sew the buttonholes together before putting it into the water.

To keep greens from packing in jars, cut through two or three times with a sharp knife.

Use a card table beside your ironing board to hold the freshly ironed clothes until ready to put them away.

A drop or two of sweet oil on the cogs of the food chopper or egg beater once in a while will keep them in good condition.

When an iron sticks, sprinkle some salt on a newspaper and rub the iron over it.

When filling salt and pepper shakers and you haven't a small funnel, put the salt and pepper in envelopes, tear off a corner of the envelope and let the salt and pepper sift through. Then none will be wasted.

THE RED CROSS IN OCEAN BEACH

By ONA E. PITCOCK

The Ocean Beach center for Red Cross work at 4769 Del Monte is on a part vacation schedule for this week and next, announce those in charge, though they point out that the center will be open all day from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. on the two days, Tuesday and Thursday, that Tuesday is "cookie" day just the same as ever and that there is no vacation in the demand for the cookies.

Other work for the Red Cross can be taken out and can be delivered on the two days specified, this announcement being made for the benefit of the women who are helping with this worth-while activity. From Mrs. Nelle R. Boud, the Red Cross field director for the U. S. Naval hospital, has been received the following letter of thanks:

"We are indebted to you again for 36 dozen home-made cookies and one box of small birthday cakes. As you know, there is nothing that so pleases the patients here as home-made delicacies. They miss mother's cooking more than anything else and we are delighted when you and the Ocean Beach ladies send these fine cookies and tea cakes to us for our men here.

"Please extend our thanks to all who contributed to this fine piece of work, and to keeping the morale high among our patients in the hospital."

RESOLUTION FOR SURVEY OF NEW HIGHWAY EAST PASSED BY CITY COUNCIL

The city council Monday passed a resolution calling for a survey for a new transcontinental highway east from San Diego, a survey which is expected to cost around $200,000, and for which the city is expecting to put up $80,000, the county $20,000 and the state $100,000, according to Councilman Charles C. Dail, while in Ocean Beach during the week. Plan is to survey several possible routes with idea of selecting the one most feasible.

Of particular interest to Ocean Beach, according to Councilman Dail, is the recent appointment by the council of Glen Rick, to put in his full time on planning future improvement projects for San Diego after the war, and with special reference to improvements in the Mission bay area. Mr. Rick is an unusually competent engineer, reports Dail.

San Diego City and County Veterans'
Re-Employment Survey Launched Here

A veterans' re-employment survey to determine how many of the city's and county's approximately 28,000 men in the armed services intend to enter business or industry when they return to this area, has been started by the San Diego Junior Chamber of Commerce. PAUL MANNEN, Chairman of the Junior Chamber Post War Planning Committee, announced today.

The questionnaire reproduced below has been distributed to the men in the services by the various Veterans' Associations and Service Clubs, and their answers will be kept on file for the use of employers and agencies interested in employing these men when they return. These individual returns will not be published, thus giving full freedom of expression to each man sending in his answers, although tabulations will be made.

This effort is a sincere desire on the part of this whole area to aid every service man in finding the kind of employment he likes and can best do, and the co-operation of every service man and his friends and family is needed to implement these plans to secure the fullest measure of success.

WHAT'S BUZZIN'!

By CHERIE.

Our pet peeve has been...

Just when we're sitting in the theatre on the edge of our seats and biting our nails waiting to see who rescues the heroine, the picture fades away and the talking machine continues to emit! Now, comes the good news! Al Keogh (Strand theatre) has had new equipment installed which should eliminate our difficulties, we hope. At any rate, notice the improvement on the screen next time you visit the theatre.

Our good friends...

Fred Kraft was ill last week, and Grace managed to keep him "under cover" for at least a day or two!... Gene Southwell (Sportswear by Marc) spent a few days in Imperial Valley and now appreciates our ocean breeze all the more!... The Engels have another visitor. This time it's Lillian's sister Edith from New York. Incidentally, little Stephen Marc was christened Sunday... Midge and Marty Frank are breaking all records decorating their house... We're happy to see Burritt Mills feeling some better. You'll soon be "tops" again, Cap!... Theresa Dietrich has chosen The Showcase as a name for her Art and Novelty Shop, and a very clever name it is, too... Glenn Bigler (formerly of Kraft's Drug) is doing alright for himself in Carlsbad.

Harry Engel who arrived recently from Chicago to make his home in Ocean Beach, has been cited by Henry Morganthau for outstanding achievement in the 5th War Bond drive. The citation was for individual activity, and was one of five to be given at Soldiers Field in Chicago June 19. Mr. Engel has received four other citations in previous War Bond drives aside from his duties as "Block" leader for two and one-half years. He organized the Junior Rangers club and was salvage warden of his block, in addition to being in charge of Victory gardens. We're mighty proud to claim you as a resident, Mr. Engel!

"Fair Stood the Wind for France" by H. E. Bates gives us a narrative and love story that only one with experience and perception could have written. Mr. Bates has served for the past three years in the R.A.F., and out of his daily contact with the fliers has come this great novel. It is a story that deals with the minds of the English aviators and the hearts of the French peasantry. A serial version of this novel appeared in the Saturday Evening Post some time ago.

Correction...

It seems a few weeks ago I was misinformed and passed my misinformation on to you. 'Scuse, please! Here's the McCoy... Earl Shaw, (Ocean Beach Furn.) has elected the new commander of the Clyde Wright Post of the American Legion, Thursday evening.

And now, mi amigos, my better half and I are about to speed forth on a few days well-earned vacation. So... if Ye Old Column is missing next week, save your news items for the following week. I'll be seeing you!

MR. WINKLE GOES TO WAR

By THEODORE PRATT

W.N.U. RELEASE

THE STORY THUS FAR: Forty-four-year-old Wilbert Winkle, who owns a modest general repair shop in the alley back of his home, is notified by his draft board that he is in I-A. He is very much surprised, as he had thought that his many physical handicaps would keep him out. He breaks the bad news to his wife, Amy, who has always domineered him, and goes to work without kissing her goodbye. His picture appears in the paper next day under the headline, "Winkle Proud to Fight." The Pettigrews and other neighbors pay a call in the evening, and shake their heads solemnly. Next day Winkle tacks a "Closed" sign over his place of business and his wife packs his things.

CHAPTER IV

"They will," said Mrs. Winkle, "when they find out how you catch cold right away if you get your feet wet."

Mr. Winkle didn't argue about it, but let her have her way. After all, he was leaving tomorrow, and she would be alone except for Penelope.

He seated himself in an armchair, and Mrs. Winkle came to stand before him. There was a peculiar look on her face. "Wilbert," she whispered.

He glanced up. He didn't understand at first what she wanted, but was prepared for it when he did. By this time he was getting accustomed to almost any surprise.

Shyly, she slipped onto his lap, and sat there. It was a long time since she had done this, and she had put on her plumpness since the last time. Mr. Winkle found her somewhat heavy, but not disagreeably so.

Mrs. Winkle fussed and fretted over him.

She rested her head on his shoulder, snuggling her face against his neck, and he put one of his arms around her waist. Penelope gazed at them curiously, as if she found the scene not quite proper.

"I didn't mean to say anything about this," she told him, "and I'm thinking of you as much as myself when I do. I've been worrying," she confessed, "about trouble you might get into."

"Trouble?" asked Mr. Winkle. "What kind of trouble?"

"Well," she said, "this is the first time we've ever been separated. Do you realize that?"

Mr. Winkle was bewildered. "I don't see what—"

"I mean," she explained, "that you could be tired of me. I mean—other women." She came out with it in a rush. "You read about it every day. You might—"

Mr. Winkle was startled. He hastened to assure Amy that there was nothing for her to worry about on that score. He told her he wasn't tired of her and that he wasn't interested in any other woman.

She sat bolt upright on his lap. "But you don't know," she stated, "you don't know yourself. You don't know how it will be."

"How," inquired Mr. Winkle, "will it be?" He was suddenly pleased to find her jealous.

"When you've been away from me long enough," she elucidated, "you'll find out."

Mr. Winkle contemplated that. At the prospect of these being something to what she said, he thought he had better deny it with convincing spirit. "Now you look here," she reflected, "I'll be able to tell when I see you again."

Threatened with this test, Mr. Winkle accused, "All you're doing is putting ideas in my head."

She drew back. "Why, Wilbert Winkle!" she cried angrily, and again there peeped forth the Amy of recent years. "Do you know what you're doing? You're placing the blame on me for your being unfaithful!"

Mr. Winkle felt that, having been given his trousers back, he should retain them. It was no time to quibble about that or shirk it. "You wait till I am," he retorted testily. "I'll send you a postcard. And on it," he said darkly, "I'll also ask why everything you're saying doesn't work on your side of the fence, too."

Instead of the frown between her eyes returning, and the pressing together of her lips, as Mr. Winkle half expected, Amy's blue eyes simply went wide.

Mrs. Winkle's eyes filled with tears and she flung herself at Mr. Winkle, wailing, "Oh, Wilbert, you're going to war and you'll come back without a leg or an arm or—"

and I haven't been nice to you for a long time, not nice at all . . . and oh, Wilbert, Wilbert!"

She sobbed, letting out all the shame that had been hers since the morning his notice arrived, and all the fear that she, too, had kept hidden during the last days.

Now it was Mr. Winkle who held her, and patted her, and assured her.

This made him feel strong and manly, and almost good about going to war.

In the morning, before they drove downtown, taking Penelope with them because they felt she, too, should see him off, Mrs. Winkle fussed and fretted over him.

"You've got your pills?" she asked. "The big bottle we had made up for you?"

Mr. Winkle patted his pocket and the pills, in their bottle, rattled.

"You haven't taken out your rubbers again?"

Mrs. Winkle shook his head.

Mr. Winkle contemplated, her brow furrowed for a moment, but she could think of nothing else. "I still can't believe you're really going," she said.

"Maybe I'll be back tomorrow."

"Oh, Wilbert, I know it isn't the thing to say, but I hope you will be." Anxiously, she asked, "If you aren't, are you sure you're going to be all right?"

"I don't see why not," he answered stoutly.

Now that the moment of leaving was here, all he could think was: Will I ever return? Will I ever see Maple Avenue and home again?

As he drove away he looked back, to catch a last glimpse of the house. Still craning his neck when he reached the corner, he nearly collided with a truck which wasn't saving its tires, eliciting a shriek from Mrs. Winkle and a protesting yelp from Penelope.

In front of the post office he got out and Mrs. Winkle took over the wheel. She would meet him with his bag at the bus station, to which Mr. Winkle understood he was to march in a parade.

Mr. Winkle negotiated the stairs to the second floor of the post office feeling a little as if he were mounting a scaffold to his doom. When he walked down the hall and into the draft board's room he found that most of the other men were already there.

Three members of the board, including the clerk and the chairman, who was clad in a blue American Legion uniform and made a very official appearance, sat before a table at the front of the room. They shuffled papers with a grave air.

The draftees themselves sat on collapsible chairs and with uneasy expressions alternated between regarding each other and the men at the table.

Mr. Winkle took a seat in the rear row. Some of the men, he saw, recognized him from his picture in the paper. A few of them gave him brief smiles or nods, tentative invitations to being comrades in arms. Or recognition that he was in the same boat with them. Mr. Winkle couldn't decide which it was.

More men came in and seated themselves. Jack Pettigrew arrived and sat gingerly on the edge of a chair; he didn't look around. Mr. Winkle counted to keep his mind busy, and saw that seventeen were present. All were here except one. Most of them were very young, not much more than half his age.

All heads turned as the last of the draftees appeared.

Mr. Winkle knew Freddie Tindall from having seen him decorating the main street of the town. He was a fixture there, like one of the lamp posts or a traffic sign. He was twenty-eight, handsome, with a thin dark mustache plastered across his lip, and his clothes were too flashy.

Freddie was a prominent member of the depression generation. He had come to maturity when there were no jobs to be had. Once having formed the habit of not working, he made it a career at which he excelled. It was his boast that he had never earned a nickel in his life and never would as long as his family's money held out. Now the war had come along to interfere with the signal success he was making of his ambition.

Freddie eyed the gathering with a superior air. When he agreed to come in and join the group, his eye lighted on Mr. Winkle. He slammed his suitcase on the floor, eased his frame gracefully to a chair in the rear row and greeted Mr. Winkle, "Hello, Pop."

One man tittered nervously. A few smiled without conviction. Jack

Pettigrew, who just then looked around, stared. The others paid no attention.

Mr. Winkle was indignant. It had been bad enough to have certain people laugh at him. But he hadn't expected one of his fellow draftees to make fun of him.

He decided that Freddie Tindall didn't know any better and wasn't worth bothering about. But Freddie was the instrument of something else that really touched him. For the first time Mr. Winkle told himself that he wasn't old. The others were just young.

The chairman of the draft board looked at his watch and then rose. He made a little talk, while the men all listened attentively, except for Freddie Tindall, who gazed indolently out the window.

The chairman explained that they had all been chosen fairly, strictly according to the Selective Service regulations. They were being asked to do a serious thing at a serious time. He knew each would do it to the best of his ability. He wished them good luck. He said that the roll would now be called. Each man, at his name, was to come forward and receive his papers and a small going-away kit furnished by the Women Volunteers.

"A leader," he concluded, "is being appointed for you, and you are required to obey him on the way to your Induction Center. The senior member among you, Mr. Wilbert Winkle, will be your leader."

Mr. Winkle was flattered. He was glad for the responsibility. It would help take his mind off himself.

Freddie Tindall leaned toward him and inquired, "How do you like being a big shot, Pop?"

Mr. Winkle saw that he was going to have trouble with Freddie.

The men began to go up. Mr. Winkle's was the last name called. He received his kit, contained in a brown imitation leather packet. Each of the draft board members shook his hand. He was given his own papers, and then instructions about a number of other documents for the group. The clerk was reading one of these, his warrant of authority, when the American Legion band burst into sound outside on the street. The clerk had to raise his voice to make the rest of the warrant heard.

They all trooped down to the street. Quite a crowd had gathered. The band, which had completed its first rendition, took up another at the sight of the group of draftees. There was a scattering of applause from the crowd. Mr. Winkle saw that some of the people had little American flags, which they waved.

Those who carried suitcases piled them in the cars of the draft board members. Then the chairman lined up the selectees in a ragged formation, four abreast, in back of the band. Mr. Winkle was placed at their head, out in front all by himself. He didn't care for this distinction, but he couldn't refuse it. The attention thus drawn to him, and the noise and the staring, cheering people, bewildered him.

They marched off behind the blaring band, and Mr. Winkle couldn't get over how the music sent a chill up his spine, stirring him. It hadn't been so long ago that he was firmly convinced martial music was an evil thing, spurring people to war.

Part of the crowd walked along with the procession, keeping pace with it. The sporadic cheering and handclapping kept up as more people were passed along the route. The parade went right through a red traffic light.

Mr. Winkle marched stiffly. He tried to keep in time with the music, but found it difficult, and finally gave it up. He wondered what the other men were doing, but didn't look back to see. Once someone in the crowd on the sidewalk called out: "Hi, Winkle! Grind their Axis for them!"

Pleasant Thought for Pie-Hungry Families! (See Recipes Below)

Pies Aplenty

Pies are good eating, even in the warmest weather. And better still, there are pies for every season and every mood.

For summer you may like juicy, luscious berry pies, their gay colorful fillings peeking out of a lattice crust. Or you may take the easy way and prepare chiffon pies, light and airy as a feather, with easy - to - make crumb crusts that require no baking. Whatever the type, you're certain to enjoy them.

Full of the goodness of golden peaches is this fruity pie:

Fresh Peach Pie.

4 cups sliced fresh peaches
1 cup sugar
4 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon cinnamon
1 tablespoon butter

Fill pastry-lined pan with fruit mixture, sprinkling the peaches with sugar and flour mixed. Sprinkle with cinnamon and dot with butter. Cover with a top crust and bake 10 minutes in a 450-degree oven and 30 minutes in a moderate (350-degree) oven. Serve warm.

Any of the berries may be used in this pie as the basic recipe is the same. Try it several times with blueberries, raspberries, blackberries or loganberries:

Fresh Berry Pie.

1 quart fresh berries
¾ to 1 cup sugar
4 tablespoons flour
2 teaspoons quick-cooking tapioca
½ teaspoon cinnamon
1 tablespoon butter

Fill pastry-lined pan with berries. Sprinkle with sugar and flour. With half of the berries in the pan, cover with tapioca, then with remaining berries, cinnamon and butter. If the berries are dry, sprinkle with 1 or 2 tablespoons water. Cover with top crust and bake in a hot oven 10 minutes and in a moderate oven 30 minutes.

Blueberry Pie: Substitute 1½ tablespoons lemon juice for cinnamon. Citrus Chiffon Pies are as cool as ocean spray. They are made so quickly, require no baking, and are made-to-order summer desserts:

*Lemon Chiffon Pie.

3 egg yolks
¾ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon grated lemon rind
¼ cup lemon juice, strained
4 tablespoons lemon-flavored gelatin
½ cup boiling water
3 egg whites
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar

Cornflake Crust
Beat egg yolks with a spoon in top of the double boiler. Stir in one-half the sugar, then salt, rind and fruit juice. Cook over boiling water 10 minutes until mixture thickens and coats the spoon.

Stir hot fruit juice or boiling water into flavored gelatin. Beat with the hot custard. Cool thoroughly until mixture begins to set, then break up while making meringue. To make meringue, beat egg whites until fluffy and gradually add remainder of sugar. Carefully fold meringue into filling and pile into crumb crust. Place in refrigerator until well set, about 2 hours. Serve cold.

Bit of All Right: Baking powder biscuits are extra special when sprinkled with orange or lemon or cinnamon sugar before baking. Biscuits dressed up like this go well with main dish salads.

Don't waste leftover biscuits by making them into crumbs. They're pleasing escorts when served toasted with peanut butter or citrus marmalade.

Fruit cups are best when chilled thoroughly. Try this combination: Cooked prunes, canned yellow cling peaches, orange segments, peach syrup, honey and lemon juice.

Lime Chiffon Pie: Use lime in above recipe in place of lemon. Green coloring may be added to intensify the color.

Cornflake Crust

4 cups rolled cornflakes
¾ cup butter
¼ cup sugar

Roll cornflakes fine. Melt butter in pie pan, add sugar and crumbs and mix thoroughly. Press evenly and firmly around sides and bottom of pie pan.

Like custards? Then you will enjoy grandmother's old-fashioned custard baked right into the flaky crust:

Grandmother's Custard Pie.
3 eggs (or, 6 yolks)
¾ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
2½ cups milk

Beat eggs slightly, add sugar, salt, nutmeg and milk. Pour into a chilled pastry-lined pie pan. Bake in a hot oven 15 minutes, then in a moderate oven to finish. Bake until a silver knife inserted into the custard comes out clean.

French Apple Pie.

Make pastry for one-crust pie. Fit into pan and flute edges. Chill, fill with apples (for 9-inch pie, use 4 cups sliced apples, 1 cup sugar, 1 teaspoon cinnamon and 1 tablespoon butter). Then sprinkle with crumb topping:

¾ cup butter
¾ cup brown sugar
1 cup flour

Bake 45 minutes to one hour until apples are done and topping is delicately browned. Serve warm.

Want Good Pastry? An old saying goes that "A pie is as good as its crust." No truer words were ever spoken. Unless the crust is short, tender and flaky, the juiciest berries or most luscious fruit can do nothing for the pie. Here are the rules:

1. Keep all ingredients and bowls well chilled.

2. Don't work over the piecrust. The lazier you are, the better the crust.

3. Use a minimum of water for moistening.

Two-Crust Pie Pastry.

(Nine-Inch)
2 cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup shortening
4 to 6 tablespoons ice water

To make pastry, sift flour once, add salt and then sift again. Mix one-half of shortening into flour and cut into mixture finely. Add remainder of shortening and cut into flour until mixture has the appearance of coarse meal.

Blend lightly, using just enough water to hold mixture together. Roll on floured cloth and fit to pastry tin.

One-Crust Pies.

The method for making one-crust pies is similar to the two-crust type, but the ingredients are as follows: 1 cup flour, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ cup shortening and 2 to 3 tablespoons ice water.

If you wish additional instruction for canning fruit or berries, write to Miss Lynn Chambers, 210 South Desplaines Street, Chicago 6, Illinois. Please enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope for your reply.

Mrs. Jones Found That She Spoke Out of Turn

Mrs. Jones went shopping. When she returned, she saw that men from the telegraph company had arrived with their van outside her house. There they were, to her disgust, with a pole and a hole in the ground. She proceeded to tell them all about it.

How dared they put up a pole right in front of her house. The property would lessen in value. She was going to complain.

The foreman let her have her head for about five minutes. Then: "I'm very sorry, madam," he said, politely, "but we're not putting the pole up. We are taking it away. It's been standing in front of your house for two years!"

ON THE HOME FRONT

IF YOU like to knit here is a quick way to turn garments into attractive rugs. Cut or tear the rags into strips three-quarter inch wide. Turn in raw edges and use needles three-eighths inch in diameter. Knit the oval center first. Cast on four stitches and increase one at the end of each row until the depth of the work is four inches, then knit evenly for ten inches. Bind off one stitch at the end of each row until you have four stitches left. Bind these off. The diagram gives the dimensions and colors for the bands that are sewn to this center oval. Cast on seven stitches to start each band. For the outside band, start with color three. Knit seven inches, then cut the fabric strip and sew color four to it. Continue. Use a large crochet hook and fabric strips to crochet around the oval and the outside edges of the bands. Sew together with double carpet thread following directions in sketch.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

About 153 million tons of agricultural products were moved from farm to market by motor vehicles in 1942, and even a greater amount is expected to be transported by highway this year. Shipments of this volume call for the use of a tremendous number of tires.

Only a small amount of rubber may reach us from the Amazon Valley, but herculean efforts are being made to get it out of the jungles, as is indicated by the report that Brazilian agencies have moved 20,000 workers into the rubber-producing country.

Hindu Obligations to God Sages, Ancestors, Humanity

A Hindu is always mindful of the four sacred "obligations" that he must discharge during his life. The first is to the gods, which he fulfills through daily worship; the second is to the sages, which he executes through the daily reading of their writings; the third is to his ancestors, which he discharges through having a son; and the fourth is to humanity, which he meets through the constant practice of kindness and hospitality.

There are 27,878,400 square feet in a square mile, which would permit about 2,787 square feet per person. That approximates the density of population of such a city as Akron, Ohio.
